

WESTERN CANADA

Could Painful Catheters Become Obsolete?

Vancouver: Many patients have experienced the discomfort, if not outright pain, of a catheter insertion to treat a bladder condition. Now, Urodynamix Technologies Ltd., Vancouver, is poised to hit the market in 2007 with a fast, safe and painless technology that uses a disposable light emitting sensor. CIHR is supporting a clinical study of this new technology, developed at the University of British Columbia, with CIHR support.

